

120209

ASPECTS OF DISCOURSE PROMINENCE
IN SOLU SHERPA ORAL STORIES OF PERSONAL EXPERIENCE

David Eugene Greninger

Presented to Payap University in Partial Fulfillment of the Requirements for the Degree of Master of Arts in Linguistics
Faculty of Arts

Payap University, Chiang Mai, Thailand
March 2009

Title Aspects of Discourse Prominence in Solu Sherpa
Oral Stories of Personal Experience
Researcher David Eugene Greninger
Degree Master of Arts in Linguistics
Main Advisor Asst. Prof. Dr. Thomas M. Tehan

The members of the Committee approve this Master's thesis

(Ajarn Malee Kongwannit)
Dean of the Faculty of Arts

The members of the thesis examining committee

1.

Committee Chair
Professor Dr. Somsong Burusphat

2.

Committee Member
Asst. Prof. Dr. Thomas M. Tehan

3.

Committee Member
Asst. Prof. Dr. Kirk R. Person

Approval Date: March 5th, 2009

Copyright © 2009 David Eugene Greninger and Payap University

All Rights Reserved

PAYAP UNIVERSITY

ACKNOWLEDGEMENTS

There are many people without whose help I would not have been able to complete this thesis. First of all, I would like to thank my thesis advisor Dr. Tom Tehan, whose patient guidance and probing questions enabled me to continually improve my analysis and the presentation of this study throughout the drafting process and final revisions. I also wish to thank Dr. Kirk Person and Dr. Somsong Burusphat, who took time out of their busy schedules to lend their expertise to my thesis committee.

I would like to express my gratitude to Aj. Doug Inglis and Aj. Art Cooper for hearing my thesis proposal defense and for giving valuable input. In addition, I want to thank Aj. Ken Manson for reading an early draft of the grammatical introduction section. I am also grateful to Aj. Terry Gibbs for providing some much needed technical assistance to improve the audio quality of two of the story recordings analyzed in this thesis. Amber Morris, Emily Lewis, Dr. Larin Adams, and especially Aj. Greg Lyons and Aj. Martin Hosken were also very helpful in facilitating the transfer of my thesis texts from Toolbox into the thesis template. Additional formatting issues were resolved with the help of Mrs. Sally Owen.

My abstract was skillfully translated into Thai by Mr. Krisda Tan with additional input from Dr. Phinnarat Akharawatthanakun. Aj. Bill Hanna and Sutheemon Ch. (Khun Nut) provided additional help with formatting and editing.

Many researchers in Nepal also made valuable contributions to this study. Mr. David Rutherford was helpful in finding resources on the Sherpa language published in Nepal. Mr. Stephen Watters provided resources and topic ideas for this study.

Dr. Anne Marie Hari also was helpful in providing resources on Sherpa. Special thanks to Mr. Sang Yong Lee who shared resources and many insights from his own experience in studying the Sherpa language and culture. I would also like to express my thanks to Mrs. Lois Varenkamp for the unending encouragement and hospitality she showed to me and my family during our visits to Nepal, and also Dr. Carl Grove for his helpful advice on many issues. In addition, Mr. Reg Naylor, Mrs. Barb Naylor, and Mr. Curtis Wong encouraged me and my research on numerous occasions.

Furthermore, I would like to express my gratitude to Dr. David Payne, who first made me aware of the Payap linguistics programs, and encouraged me to consider pursuing my MA studies at Payap.

Of course without the help of members of the Sherpa community, this study would have been impossible. A number of Sherpas have given their time and talents to this project. Mr. Kami Sherpa shared his home with me and allowed me to record one of his stories. Mr. Tshering Tenzing Sherpa helped guide me around the Solu-Khumbu region and contributed to the transcription and interlinearization of many of the stories. Mr. Ang Babu Lama (Sherpa) also helped with the transcription and interlinearization of stories. Mr. Sange Sherpa allowed me to record two stories about his life, and he also contributed to the transcription and interlinearization of the stories. I am especially thankful to Pemba Nuri Sherpa, who has helped me and my family in numerous ways. Pemba was my primary Sherpa language teacher and primary Sherpa language consultant for the transcription, interlinearization, and analysis of the stories studied in this thesis. Pemba allowed me to record two of his stories to be analyzed in this study, helped guide me around Solu-Khumbu, and invited me to visit his family home in Solu.

I would like to thank all of my friends and family back home in the USA. Thank you especially to my parents for always encouraging me in the path that I felt God leading me on. I also want to thank my “Punjabi parents”, Frank and Vanita Sethi for their friendship and extraordinary hospitality and generosity, which helped make Chiang Mai truly feel like home. My family will very much miss their friendship when we leave Chiang Mai. I am also thankful for the generosity of Mr. Paul Utley, who graciously invited me to stay at his home on my first visit to Chiang Mai and Payap.

In addition to those already mentioned, many at Payap encouraged me greatly by their friendship and by providing an environment of healthy intellectual stimulation. I am thankful to all of my classmates and Ajarns for their friendship and encouragement. I would especially like to thank Aj. Karen Block for all her work as the Department Head during most of my time at Payap, Aj. Janice Stefaniw and Aj. Roman Stefaniw whose encouragement in and out of the classroom has been a tremendous blessing to me, Mr. Daniel Arisawa for his well-researched MA thesis, which provided a very useful starting place for me in my own research on storyline, and to Mr. Eddie Clark, whose generous and inquisitive spirit and limitless energy has been an inspiration to me throughout our almost four and a half years together studying at Payap. In addition, I would like to thank Minh and Sutheemon Ch. (Khun Nut) for their help with logistics related to my thesis defense and for helping me to complete thesis-related paperwork.

Unending thanks to my wife Christy for her patient endurance and loving encouragement. Without Christy's many sacrifices, I would not have been able to complete this program. Thank you also to my daughter Nima for her many encouraging smiles, good sleeping habits, and patience in being dragged all around the world, and to my new baby girl, Gwenyth Virginia, born on November 14th, 2008, who thoughtfully delayed her arrival until I was able to submit the first full draft of this thesis.

Finally, I dedicate this thesis to the memory of my maternal grandmother, Virginia Ann Carter McGaughey, who died on July 24th, 2007, a few weeks short of her 90th birthday. Virginia McGaughey (born August 6th 1917) was one of the most generous people I have ever known. She financed a large portion of my undergraduate studies and most of my graduate program at Payap. Her generous giving also opened the door for me to travel outside of North America for the first time, and on many subsequent trips. Without her generosity, it is very unlikely that I would be living in Thailand and completing an MA in linguistics.

Sola Deo gloria 'To God alone be the glory'

David E. Greninger
March 5th, 2009