ACKNOWLEDGMENTS

This thesis could not be completed without significant help of Assistant Professor Dr. Wanida Penkingarn, who not only served as my adviser, but also put me in a challenging manner. I am also grateful to Lecturer Dr. Pearl Wattanakul, who encouraged me throughout the thesis construction as well as my academic program. And also Lecturer Janet Voettiner, who edited my paper for English language competence. Furthermore, I would like to express my deep appreciation to Associate Professor Dr. Duangduen Suwattee from the Ministry of University Affairs and Associate Professor Dr. Kittiporn Punyapinyophol from the Faculty of Education, Chiang Mai University who offered worthy consultation during the thesis defense.

Appreciation is also extended to Associate Professor Rozzano C. Locsin and Mr. Chukiet Jarearnwicha who provided me with valuable guidance in conducting my thesis. I wish to express my appreciation to Ms. Kobkarn Potchanachai who generously devoted her time in calculating the statistics meticulously. A word of thanks also goes to my two best friends, Lecturer Andy Chulamorakot and Lecturer Chadaporn Thepwong, as both of them assisted me to do the data collection.

I would like to extend my deepest thanks to the Head of the English Department, Lecturer Ouyporn Chingchayanuluk, the coordinator of AE 201 course, Lecturer Nongluck Sriwichai, and all lecturers in the English Department. The successful completion of my research depended upon their cooperation. Moreover, I would like to thank all of the AE 201 students who participated in my research.

Last but not least, I will never forget the encouragement, financial support, and the spiritual guidance that I received from my parents, all my sisters including my close friends which undoubtedly gave me the inner strength to overcome some obstacles which cropped up during the course of my studies. I will always pray for their longevity.
