ACKNOWLEDGMENTS

I would like to take this opportunity to express my appreciation and thanks to those who directly or indirectly contributed towards completion of my thesis.

First of all, I owe a great debt of gratitude to Friends Missionary Prayer Band, India, the mission I serve with, for granting three years of leave to study at Payap University. I am also greatly indebted to Mr. Jacob George, the coordinator of Indian Institute for Cross Cultural Communication, for initiating my study program here at Payap University.

My appreciation is due to Dr. Alaichamy Paul and Dr. Christeena Paul for creating an interest in me for pursuing the study of linguistics.

I gratefully acknowledge the moral support given by Mr. David Standing, Dr. Warren Glover and Mrs. Jessie Glover for doing my M.A study program at Payap.

My thanks also go to my dear wife Vasanthi, for sharing her love and service in the midst of her own study program.

I wish to give my loving thanks to our son Augustine Samuel and daughter Deborah Catherine for the great encouragement received through their willingness to stay back in India and continue their education.

I am most indebted to Dr. Frances Woods, my thesis supervisor, for her untiring willingness to read through all my rough drafts again and again and make necessary suggestions. I know this thesis would not have come to this shape but for her strenuous work on my paper.

Furthermore, I would particularly express my thanks to Acharn Douglas Inglis and Acharn Michael Cooper for their willingness to be my thesis committee members and give their valuable advice on my paper.

My sincere thanks are due to my classmate Margaret Ukosakul for all her love and concern which greatly motivated me to press forward. I also give my deepest thanks to all my friends who sincerely prayed for the successful completion of my thesis.

Above all, I am indebted for ever to my Lord and Saviour for his faithfulness in granting good health and wisdom all these years of my living in Chiang Mai.
