

RESUME

Name: Duong Tan Le

Date of Birth: June 25, 1976

Place of Birth: Quang Nam Province, Vietnam

Institutions attended:

2003. M.A (in Linguistics). Payap University, Chiangmai, Thailand

1997. B.A (in English Linguistics and Literature). Da Nang University, Da Nang, Vietnam

PAYAP UNIVERSITY

ACKNOWLEDGMENTS

I wish to gratefully acknowledge the many people who helped make this thesis a reality. My gratitude goes to the thesis committee members for their invaluable guidance, advice, and encouragement to complete this thesis. Dr. Brian Migliazza oversaw the thesis work with his constant encouragement and academic inspiration. Ajarn Noel Mann enthusiastically equipped and inspired me with historical linguistic knowledge during course work and the thesis writing. He also contributed a great deal of time to reading through various lengthy drafts and provided insightful comments and encouraging criticism. Ajarn Marjorie Doty kindly spent immeasurable time helping to check my phonetic transcriptions and phonological analysis.

I am grateful to many people who have contributed their valuable assistance to my study and my thesis writing. Dr. Fraser Bennett ran the Cluster Analysis and Jaccardian Coefficient programs for lexicostatistics and shared phonological rules. Dr. Paul Sidwell provided some of his data which proved helpful in determining the reliability of reconstructed forms. Miss Sandy has provided me with technical assistance. Mr. Jim and his family have been a great encouragement with care and concern. I would like to thank all my teachers in the Linguistics Department who imparted their profound knowledge to me. I also would like to express my gratitude to all my friends and classmates for their help and concern during my time in the study program.

I am deeply thankful to my spiritual mentors who exhibited a wonderful example of leadership and spiritual care. Pastor L. H. Duc provided me with the opportunity for study by helping and encouraging me to enroll in the Masters program at Payap University. Pastor H. T. Khoa has been a great encouragement by caring for me in various aspects of life, as well as providing me with the fresh impetus toward acquiring knowledge in order to serve others.

I would particularly like to thank my family members with all of my heart. My parents, my sisters, and my niece have supported me with their fervent prayers and with their constant concern while I have been away to earn this degree. Their lives are wonderful examples of perseverance and hard work. I am especially thankful to my beloved, Ha Nguyen, who has been waiting for me with her faithful love, continuous prayers, happy care, and great encouragement.

I, most of all, would like to give thanks to God Almighty for His love, grace, strength, and comfort to complete this thesis.

October 24, 2003